

USII.5a

Reforms in the early twentieth century could not legislate how people behaved. Economic conditions and violence led to the migration of black Americans.

Prohibition was imposed by a constitutional amendment that made it illegal to manufacture, transport, and sell alcoholic beverages.

FEDERAL RAIDERS USED AXES ON THIS SPEAKEASY

Results of Prohibition:

"Speakeasies" were created as places for people to drink illegal alcoholic beverages.

"Bootleggers" smuggled illegal alcohol and promoted organized crime

The student will demonstrate knowledge of the social, economic and technological changes of the early twentieth century by
b) describing the social changes that took place including Prohibition, and the "Great Migration" north.
